

Elena Salamanca is historian and writer. She has published the books Last Friday (El Salvador, 2008), Landsmoder (El Salvador, 2012), Fish In The Mouth (Mexico, 2013, El Salvador, 2011) and Family or Oblivion (El Salvador, 2017). She is currently writing her thesis on Central American exile in Mexico as well as the Central American union projects for her History Doctorate at the University of Mexico. She writes about memory, forgetting, pain and grief from the history of experience. She has been a columnist for El Faro, de El Salvador, and Plaza Pública, Guatemala. Her literature has been translated into English, French, German and Swedish.